Big Effort Against Turkey and Germany Imminent.

SIGNS OF GREAT ACTIVITY

Naval Movements Are Reported in Both the Aegean and North Seas and All Steamship Communication With Holland Has Been Stopped by Order of the British Government.

London, April 23.—The frankness of the cabinet ministers in making known the number of men at the front and the reports that reach London from various sources have convinced the people that at last the big effort against Germany and Turkey is about to commence. Both in the Aegean and North seas there are signs of increasing activity. All steamboat communication with Holland is stopped by order of the British government.

Taken in connection with the news from Berlin that British submarines have been in the Bight of Helgoland, where the German admiralty lays claim to having sunk one and perhaps more, this is believed to foreshadow some movement in the North sea, while there is no longer any endeavor to hide the fact that a big Anglo-French force is prepared to go, as General D'Amade, the French commander, has said, "to any point where it is needed."

A German report says that part of this force, which is under command of General Sir Ian Hamilton, has been landed at Enos, a Turkish town near the Turkish-Bulgarian border, on the northern side of the Gulf of Saros, under the support of the allied fleet. At the same time there is news of transports loaded with troops passing the island of Lemnos, not far from the entrance of the Dardanelles, and of others being sighted off Smyrna on the coast of Asia Minor.

Place of Blow Uncertain.

This makes it uncertain where the blow is to be struck. There are Anglo-French troops in the Aegean sea, including Senegalese, who were transferred from France, and British "Tommy's" from the outposts of the empire.

Nearer home the British are holding tenaciously to Hill Sixty, near Ypres, which they captured from the Germans Saturday and which the Germans have since been trying to retake. The French are pressing hard on the two sides of the German triangle in the Woëvre.

The Russians, according to their accounts, are repulsing repeated Austrian attacks on their positions to the southeast of Lupkow pass in the Carpathians and are holding their own against the Austro-German efforts on their flanks near Gorlice in Western Galicia and Stry in the eastern portion of the same province.

Although rumors are many and divergent no definite news has been received of Italy's intentions. While dispatches indicate that the tension between Rome and Vienna has slackened the belief is general that before many weeks Italy and some of the Balkan states will assume more definite attitude.

Ten to Eight Hostilities Will Cease by Dec. 30.

New York, April 23.—In Wall street $10,000 to $8,000 was offered that the war will end before Dec. 30; $1,000 to $900 that it will end before Nov. 30, and even money that it will end before Oct. 30.

Lord Beresford Suggests $425,000,000 in Berlin Be Drawn On.

London, April 23.—The estimated value of German property in Great Britain in the custody of the public trustee was given in the house of commons as in the neighborhood of £85,000,000 ($425,000,000). Russell Rea, who, on behalf of the board of trade, gave these figures, in response to a question from Lord Charles Beresford, assured the questioner that "these German assets will be available for such disposal as seems proper on the conclusion of peace."

Lord Beresford's suggestion was that Englishmen owning property in Germany should recoup out of this fund and that £1,000 ($5,000) daily should be confiscated for every British officer subjected to ill treatment while a prisoner in Germany.

BRITISH AVIATORS GERMAN TRENCHES

(By United Press)

London, April 23.—British aviators are running wild over the German trenches in Belgium and scores are passing and repassing the German lines, some of them having penetrated well into German territory. The railway signal base was bombarded successfully, the damage interfering with the running of trains on schedule. In an official report this afternoon General French mentioned an attack by nineteen who bombed the great aeroplane sheds designed to house two or more of the latest types of Zeppelins just outside of Ghent. It is declared that a great explosion occurred in the shed and this is interpreted to mean that a dirigible inside was destroyed.

Petrograd, April 23.—Russian dirigibles are being used to harass Von Hindenburg's line communication, one bombarding the German position near Ploek Thursday dropping fifteen bombs upon the enemy's transports, badly damaging them. Several German transports on the Vistula were also sunk. Two other dirigibles bombed the railway station at Miawa, doing great damage.

Court Says Wabash Figure Can Be Cut $13,000,000.

St. Louis, April 23.—The sale of the Wabash railroad for $21,000,000 instead of for $34,000,000, the minimum fixed in the foreclosure decree, will be permitted by the federal district court, the receivers were informed by Circuit Judge Adams.

Sixteen million dollars will be required to take up outstanding receivers' certificates and $5,000,000 to liquidate the costs of the receivership.

DISCLOSES PLOT TO KIDNAP HARRY THAW

Conspirator Says Plan Was to Take Him to Virginia.

New York, April 23.—Another plan to kidnap Harry Kendall Thaw from the authorities from New York state by bundling him into an automobile was disclosed by an investigation made in Norfolk, Va., by Sheriff Griffith of New York, according to a dispatch from Norfolk to the Tribune.

The scheme was frustrated, says the dispatch, through a letter written to Frederick J. Groehl, assistant district attorney here, a former resident of this city, who said he was offered $1,000 to seize Thaw, but refused because the money was not forthcoming.

The attempt to kidnap Thaw and get him outside the state, preferably to Virginia via New Jersey, was to be made, the dispatch says, during the hearing on Thaw's case in this city.

The man who gave the authorities the information regarding the alleged plot said he was approached by a New York private detective, and asked to supply the automobile, a chauffeur and another man who was to be the outside man, while the detective agreed to look after four men who were to seize Thaw and get him to the car.

RUSSIANS SUFFER REVERSE

Austrians Prevent Capture of Pass in Carpathians.

Vienna, April 23.—The following of fiscal communication was issued: "In Russian Poland and Western Galicia isolated artillery engagements are reported."

"On the Carpathian front fresh attacks against our positions on both sides of the Uzok pass were repulsed. In these violent attacks, which were stopped partly by our artillery and partly by counter attacks by our infantry, the enemy suffered heavy losses before our position at the top of the pass, which was attacked several times. More than four hundred Russian dead were left, while 1,200 Russians were captured."

$10,000,000 PAID TO KIN OF BRITISH DEAD.

London, April 23.—British life insurance companies have paid war claims of almost $10,000,000 to relatives of soldiers and officers killed during the first seven months of the war. One company alone had to meet 8,000 claims.

ACTED ONLY TO SAVE HIS PARTY

Colonel Roosevelt Admits Conferring With Bosses.

NOMINATION FOR GOVERNOR

Former President Testifies Without Hesitation That He Had Orally and in Writing Discussed With Republican Leaders His Chances for the New York Governorship.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 23.—Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, spent five strenuous hours under cross-examination in the supreme court here. He admitted without any hesitation that he had orally and in writing discussed with "bosses" the question of procuring the nomination for governor of New York.

He identified as being his a letter he wrote to Lemuel E. Quigg of New York, a Republican leader and now a delegate to the state constitutional convention, in which he acquiesced in Quigg's assurances to former United States Senator Thomas C. Platt that he would, in the event of his election, respect the senator's position as head of the Republican party and would "consult with him freely and fully on all important matters." He testified that he did confer with Mr. Platt, the so called "easy boss." But, he added, he did so with regard to the interests of the party, with a genuine desire to keep the Republican party together and minimize the "centrifugal influences" within that party and prevent it from flying asunder.

The colonel stepped from the stand amid roars of laughter he had caused. He had been answering questions and incidentally asking a few of the attorneys cross-examining him about Mr. Platt's opposition to a bill in the New York legislature providing for a tax upon franchises.

Secured Passage of Bills.

The witness told how he had finally secured the passage of the bill against the wishes of Mr. Platt and other leaders of the Republican organization.

Then he was asked whether, upon the final passage of the bill, which caused the break between himself and Senator Platt, he had sent to the senator in Washington a telegram containing only the two words:

"Three cheers."

"I don't remember the telegrams," the colonel solemnly replied. Then he made a grim face, smiled, slapped his thigh with his open hand and added:

"But it is characteristic."

On several occasions Colonel Roosevelt was more cross-examined than cross-examined. He would snap out a monosyllable as an answer to a question put to him, then proceed to make a statement upon his own account and finally conclude with a query to William Irvin, chief counsel for William Barnes, who is suing to recover $50,000 from Colonel Roosevelt for alleged libel. And Mr. Irvin nearly always replied to the questions of the witness before resuming his examination in a soft voice that was scarcely audible in the rear of the courtroom.

Mr. Irvin, regarded in legal circles as a master at the art of cross-examination, after the colonel became enthusiastically emphatic, remarked that the witness was treating him "as a mass meeting," while on other occasions he declared that he had no desire to "be eaten up here."

London, April 23.—The Daily Mail's Sofia correspondent, in a dispatch dated Tuesday, says:

"Fugitives from Enos say that following the bombardment by the allies the British landed a force at Enos and the Turkish commander ordered an evacuation of the port."

Enos is Turkey's most southwestern port on the Aegean sea. It lies just to the east of the new boundary line between Turkey and Bulgaria and is twelve miles southeast of Dedeağatch, Bulgaria.

Rich Bush Goes to the Duluth, Gets Practice—John Gavin Returns From Florida

Rich Bush, in answer to a summons from Darby O'Brien, manager of the Duluth team, has reported in the Zenith City. The sporting department under Art L. Wilhelm heads a story. "Six White Sox Rookies Hear the Rattle of the Can; Williams Signs," and tells of the trials and tribulations of the recruits.

"To pick three or four pitchers is going to be the real task set before Darby this year. Bryant will be dean for the staff without question. Boley and Barr look good, possibly both will hook on—at least one.

"Young Bush, brother of 'Bullet Jog' of Brainerd arrived yesterday, and while he did not work is apparently as active and used to labor as a girl clerk in a busy store, if he can put them over he looks like a good bet—time can tell and that alone."

Bush, when seen shortly before going to Duluth, said he was to land a berth in either the pitching squad or outfield.

John Gavin, late recruit on trial of Connie Mack, has returned from the Florida training camp. It is said he may play with Grand Forks this year. Like some pupil who sits at the feet of a master, Gavin can honestly say he was a pupil of Connie Mack. He had the honor anyway of being in grand company for some weeks and saw how the cogs of a big machine work when directed by the great Philadelphia.

There will be batting practice at the Koering grounds this Saturday and a general call has been sounded for players to make their appearance. Like Darby O'Brien, of the Docks, the local men at the helm will give them all a chance.

WOMAN'S REALM

VARIETIES IN NEIGHBORS.

Editorial in Minneapolis Journal has Application to Brainerd in "Clean-Up" Days

The following editorial from the Minneapolis Journal, say Miss Louise Barrett, applies very closely to Brainerd, especially the matter of making paths across lawns and parties:

"Neighbors are a fine institution and, if there are enough of them, they make up a big city that draws to itself, like a magnet, wealth, power and life. But the arrival of the clean up days in various cities emphasizes the fact that there is an enormous difference in neighbors.

Some neighbors have an interest in the appearance of their streets, their premises and their city; others seem to be not at all concerned. Some have no compunctions about throwing broken glass on the street, or leaving it there, if someone else has so thrown it.

Some neighbors, in their building, conform to street lines or practices; others are just as well pleased to build out in front of a regular street line. They build according to whim, and in fine disregard of the unwritten rights of others.

Some neighbors freely walk across the lawns of their friends, instead of using the sidewalks, and wear paths where none should be. They are careless of weeds and refuse on the backs of their lots, and they have no feeling against throwing refuse back of their garages or barns in clear view of the next street. Downtown they sweep their store or sidewalk dust in the faces of passers-by at eight o'clock in the morning, when the sidewalks are most in use.

Good neighbors, a whole city full of them, mean much to the value of property and to the success of business. To put it on the lowest ground good citizens are a money asset to the city. The other kind are a liability.

The late W. R. Nelson, of the Kansas City Star, took an entire addition, surrounded the lots with low stone walls, and trained rambler roses over them all. Then some people were contemptuous, because he made money selling them!

There is much of happiness to oneself in being a good neighbor—and it is a fine thing for any city to be made up largely of people who are considerate of these things."

WOMAN'S REALM

Editorial in Minneapolis Journal has Application to Brainerd in "Clean-Up" Days

The following editorial from the Minneapolis Journal, say Miss Louise Barrett, applies very closely to Brainerd, especially the matter of making paths across lawns and parks: "Neighbors are a fine institution and, if there are enough of them, they make up a big city that draws to itself, like a magnet, wealth, power and life. But the arrival of the clean up days in various cities emphasizes the fact that there is an enormous difference in neighbors.

Some neighbors have an interest in the appearance of their streets, their premises and their city; others seem to be not at all concerned. Some have no compunctions about throwing broken glass on the street, or leaving it there, or someone else has so thrown it.

Some neighbors, in their building, conform to street lines or practices; others are just as well pleased to build out in front of a regular street line. They build according to whim, and in fine disregard of the unwritten rights of others.

Some neighbors freely walk across the lawns of their friends, instead of using the sidewalks, and wear paths where none should be. They are careless of weeds and refuse on the backs of their lots, and they have no feeling against throwing refuse back of their garages or barns in clear view of the next street. Downtown they sweep their store or sidewalk dust in the faces of passers-by at eight o'clock in the morning, when the sidewalks are most in use.

Good neighbors, a whole city full of them, mean much to the value of property and to the success of business. To put it on the lowest ground good citizens are a money asset to the city. The other kind are a liability.

The late W. R. Nelson, of the Kansas City Star, took an entire addition, surrounded the lots with low stone walls, and trained rambler roses over them all. Then some people were contemptuous, because he made money selling them!

DOUBLE SERVICE

AUTOMOBILE TIRES

Guaranteed 7000 Miles Service ABSOLUTELY PUNCTUREPROOF

Double Service Tires are double the thickness of the best standard make tires.

This 100 per cent greater wearing surface naturally gives that much more mileage and service. The average of 12 miles of tough fabric and one inch surface thread rubber makes these tires absolutely punctureproof.

These tires excel all others for use in the country over rough and rugged roads as well as on hard pavements. They are as easy riding and resilient as any other pneumatic tire—the air space and pressure being the same.

They are the most economical and "care free" tires made and are used where tires must be depended on and tire troubles cannot be tolerated. Many Double Service style tires are in use in the United States government and European War service.

Our output is limited to a certain amount, but for a short time we offer the following reduced special prices as an Introductory Offer:

REPUBLICAN VICTORY NEXT

William Lorimer, of Chicago, former United States senator, whose political and financial troubles have long kept him prominent, said yesterday while in the twin cities that the bull moose party is dead and that the republican party will sweep everything before it at the next presidential election. Mr. Lorimer with his son-in-law, Ralph Smith, had come to investigate the merits of a new automobile wheel.

"I believe the republican party will be successful and that success does not depend upon the nomination of any one man," he said. "The next election will witness such a victory as that which carried McKinley into office."—Minneapolis Journal.

FLIES AND MILK

There is special danger when flies drop into such fluid as milk. This forms an ideal culture material for the bacillus. A few germs washed from the body of one fly may develop into millions within a few hours, and the person who drinks such milk will receive large doses of bacilli, which may later cause serious sickness.

Many diseases which are attributed to milk and water originate through flies. A polluted brook, river or lake furnishes germs from sewers and flies in millions settle on the refuse that washes along the water's edge.

Intestinal diseases are more frequent whenever and wherever flies are most abundant, and they, and not the summer heat, are the active agents in its spread.

(FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT)

McAdoo Under Fire

The secretary of the treasury, Mr. McAdoo, and the comptroller of the currency, John Skelton Williams, have been charged with conspiracy to injure one of the oldest and most respected banks in the country, by the Riggs bank of this city, an institution which began business in 1836. The officials named are charged with using their office to satisfy a personal spite, in what promises to be the most sensational suit in the history of the National bank act.

While the controversy between the bank and the present management of the treasury is largely of a technical character, and while the merits of that controversy will be determined by the court, the friends of the administration are greatly distressed over it because of its inevitable political effect. Such an attack, made by so conservative and reputable an institution, on Secretary McAdoo, following the very general criticism of him in connection with the recently defeated shipping bill, strikes at President Wilson's administration in its most vulnerable point. Democratic senators said when Congress adjourned that, could they have allayed the widespread suspicion which had been occasioned, even among their colleagues, by Mr. McAdoo's refusal to permit that bill to be so amended as to prohibit the purchase of interned vessels belonging to belligerents, they could have passed the shipping bill, so dear to the president's heart. Furthermore, many democrats in both houses of Congress expressed the opinion that although there had been much unkind criticism of Secretary Bryan, Mr. McAdoo had become the administration's greatest liability. Unless, therefore, the courts shall completely exonerate Secretary McAdoo from the charges brought by the Riggs bank, he will become a still greater liability and the president's position would be most embarrassing because Mr. McAdoo is his son-in-law, as well as secretary of the treasury, a fact which would make it most distasteful to the president to have to add for his resignation.

Bryan and Von Bernstorff

Still further to embarrass the president has arisen an unfortunate controversy between Secretary Bryan and the German ambassador over the publication of the latest German note. It is not clear, in the first place, whether the so-called "note" is really a communication from the foreign office or whether it originated with the ambassador. Furthermore, Count von Bernstorff maintains that it was delivered to the state department on April 2. At first Mr. Bryan declared it was not so delivered until April 9. Now Mr. Bryan says the note was delivered on April 5, just as he was leaving to spend the week end at his country home in Asheville, N. C., that it was in German and that he paid little attention to it, merely passing it over to a translator, and that he did not receive the translation until April 9. Mr. Bryan says he never consented to the publication of the note, whereas the ambassador maintains that he did.

Some days ago, Mr. Bryan said he had not read the German note, but that his subordinates had and were preparing a reply. The president gravely objects to the character of the note and he considers it most unfortunate that this controversy regarding its receipt and publication should have arisen.

Prosperity by Proclamation.

The administration realizes keenly that unless there is a return of prosperity within the next twelve months there will not be the slightest chance for a democratic victory in 1916. This is frankly admitted by democratic leaders in private conversation and the president himself is fully alive to the situation. Recent elections have emphasized this fact and the spokesmen for the administration have begun a campaign to convince the country that prosperity is already here. The secretary of commerce has issued several statements showing the increased orders in certain industries, without, however, supplying details showing how many of these orders were directly due to the war in Europe. The bank examiners issued another statement tending to prove that the whole country is prosperous. Cabinet officers are alternating in daily interviews to prove that depression has disappeared and that prosperity prevails.

This campaign is humorous because there is nothing so obvious as real prosperity, nothing that requires less proof. The fact that the country has to be officially advised of its advent and impressed with its actuality shows the slim foundation for the assurances which are being given to the country and also the desperate desire of the administration to invoke this absolutely necessary conservator of the democratic rule. It is a well understood rule among business men that economic laws are inexorable and cannot be changed by artificial methods. Prosperity cannot be created by proclamation nor can its presence be denied when it actually exists. The administration cannot hope to convince a business man that he is prosperous when his trial balance shows a loss. Prosperity for political purposes cannot be created, it must develop naturally. The democrats are concerned with its slow development and afraid that it may arrive too late. Hence the vigorous puffing of the slender flame of improving conditions.

Daniels Worried

There is intense anxiety in the office of the secretary of the navy these days. It is gravely feared that the raising of the submarine, the F-4, which sank in the harbor of Honolulu with all on board, will reveal conditions which will put the blame for that disaster squarely up to Secretary Daniels. Commander Stirling frankly told the naval committee of the house of the unsafe condition of a number of the submarines under his command, and he was on December 9 last, severely rebuked for his truthful testimony by Mr. Daniels. Representative Gardner of Massachusetts has publicly charged Secretary Daniels with responsibility for the disaster and there are many others who will not be slow to indict the secretary if their suspicions that his policy was responsible are verified. Another officer who told the truth with entire frankness when he appeared before the naval committee was Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, and he has just been made to walk the plank, metaphorically speaking, by the indignant secretary.

Admiral Fiske has been one of the chief aids of the secretary and has been regarded, by all competent to judge, as an exceedingly able administrator of that office, but he incurred the displeasure of Mr. Daniels because, when examined and cross-examined by members of the naval committee, he told them precisely what the condition of the navy was and how unprepared for war. So he has now suffered the penalty.

W. T. Azzell, ex-postmaster of Edwinstown, Ind., writes: "I suffered from severe trouble with my kidneys and back. First bottle of Foley's gave me relief." WANTS FLEET TO GO TO PACIFIC

Daniels Anxious to Have Ships Visit San Francisco.

GARRISON OPPOSES IDEA.

Secretary of War Thinks Units Should Stay on Atlantic Side and Be Ready For Any Emergency—Friendly Sort of a Game Between Two Cabinet Officers Interests All Washington.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, April 22.—[Special.]—It seems as if there was a sort of a game being played between two cabinet officers. Secretary Daniels is determined to send the fleet through the canal this summer and so on around to San Francisco. Secretary Garrison seems—and the word "seems" is used because he has never said a word—determined that the fleet shall remain on the Atlantic side and ready in case some emergency of the European war should make it necessary for the defense of the country.

Daniels can order the fleet to go through the canal, but if Garrison has a slide or two up his sleeve to let loose just about the time the date is set the fleet cannot go through. It will be interesting to watch the end of the game—if a game is being played. And a great many people seem to think that it is one of the "games" of a somewhat delicate kind that is going on in Washington.

Daniels Seeks No Danger.

For twenty years Mr. Daniels has been an ardent admirer of Mr. Bryan and he shares his views on most public questions. So far as he has been able he has carried out Mr. Bryan's principles in his department. He shares Bryan's peace views and does not for a moment think it possible that this country is going to be involved in war. He does not share the belief of many men both in the war and navy departments that the fleet should not be sent into the Pacific ocean at this time, but held on the Atlantic side in case of an emergency. Mr. Daniels no more than Mr. Bryan believes that there is any possibility of war or that the fleet will be necessary on account of any contingency which may arise.

What He Makes of Himself.

John Lind, who was once governor of Minnesota, is of the opinion that a governor of a state is as much of a power and influence as he makes of himself. "A governor is like a member of Congress," said Mr. Lind. "If he is a hard worker, careful to attend to everything and specializes on some important matter he will attract attention and make his office of some account. If he is just a good fellow, loafing along and letting everything go save those things he must look after, he will not be much of a success."

Wilson and War.

One of the few men who once in awhile get close to President Wilson was discussing the situation in Europe the other day.

Recollecting what another man who was supposed to be close to Wilson had assured a large reading public in the United States, I remarked that as long as Wilson was president there would be no war by the United States. "Oh, I would not go so far as that," replied the supposed confidant of the president. "Mr. Wilson wants to avoid war and will do all he can to prevent it. That is a better way to put it."

Made It a Holiday.

President Wilson closed the departments at Washington on the fiftieth anniversary of the death of Abraham Lincoln. It was a proper mark of respect, but the government clerks made the most of it. To them it meant a holiday, and they enjoyed it as such. And one could hardly expect them to sit around all day and mourn with bright April sunshine inviting them to the fields and woodlands.

Both Want Huerta Interned.

Carranza and Villa want Huerta interned. They have no use for the old Indian who held out so long against them when they were united and finally succumbed because of the power exerted by the United States against him. General Huerta is not the man to bring peace to Mexico now. If he goes back to that country he will simply be another disturbing element. It is not probable that the United States will take any action in regard to him.

May Extend the Prejudice.

"I am afraid," said a southern Democrat, "that the controversy between the treasury officials and the bank in Washington will extend and tend to confirm the impression which prevails to such a great extent that the administration is hostile to property interests and moneyed men simply because they are rich. I have heard a great deal of that kind of talk. The same idea prevails in regard to the contest Postmaster General Burleson is having with the railroads. Now, in regard to all these matters the American people want everybody, rich and poor, to have a fair deal, and I don't like to see a prejudice created one way or another. The controversy is unfortunate all around."

REPUBLICAN VICTORY NEXT

William Lorimer, of Chicago, former United States senator, whose political and financial troubles have long kept him prominent, said yesterday while in the twin cities that the bull moose party is dead and that the republican party will sweep everything before it at the next presidential election. Mr. Lorimer with his son-in-law, Ralph Smith, had come to investigate the merits of a new automobile wheel.

"I believe the republican party will be successful and that success does not depend upon the nomination of any one man," he said. "The next election will witness such a victory as that which carried McKinley into office."—Minneapolis Journal.

FLIES AND MILK

There is special danger when flies drop into such fluid as milk. This forms an ideal culture material for the bacillus. A few germs washed from the body of one fly will develop into millions within a few hours, and the person who drinks such milk will receive large doses of bacilli, which may later cause serious sickness.

Many diseases which are attributed to milk and water originate through flies. A polluted brook, river or lake furnishes germs from sewers and flies in millions settle on the refuse that washes along the water's edge.

Intestinal diseases are more frequent whenever and wherever flies are most abundant, and they, and not the summer heat, are the active agents in its spread.

(FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT)

McAdoo Under Fire

The secretary of the treasury, Mr. McAdoo, and the comptroller of the currency, John Skelton Williams, have been charged with conspiracy to injure one of the oldest and most respected banks in the country, by the Riggs bank of this city, an institution which began business in 1836. The officials named are charged with using their office to satisfy a personal spite, in what promises to be the most sensational suit in the history of the National bank act.

While the controversy between the bank and the present management of the treasury is largely of a technical character, and while the merits of that controversy will be determined by the court, the friends of the administration are greatly distressed over it because of its inevitable political effect. Such an attack, made by so conservative and reputable an institution, on Secretary McAdoo, following the very general criticism of him in connection with the recently defeated shipping bill, strikes at President Wilson's administration in its most vulnerable point. Democratic senators said when congress adjourned that, could they have allayed the widespread suspicion which had been occasioned, even among their colleagues, by Mr. McAdoo's refusal to permit that bill to be so amended as to prohibit the purchase of interned vessels belonging to belligerents, they could have passed the shipping bill, so dear to the president's heart. Furthermore, many democrats in both houses of congress expressed the opinion that although there had been much unkind criticism of Secretary Bryan, Mr. McAdoo had become the administration's greatest liability. Unless, therefore, the courts shall completely exonerate Secretary McAdoo from the charges brought by the Riggs bank, he will become a still greater liability and the president's position would be most embarrassing because Mr. McAdoo is his son-in-law, as well as secretary of the treasury, a fact which would make it most distasteful to the president to have to add for his resignation.

Still further to embarrass the president has arisen an unfortunate controversy between Secretary Bryan and the German ambassador over the publication of the latest German note. It is not clear, in the first place, whether the so-called "note" is really a communication from the foreign office or whether it originated with the ambassador. Furthermore, Count von Bernstorff maintains that it was delivered to the state department on April 2. At first Mr. Bryan declared it was not so delivered until April 9. Now Mr. Bryan says the note was delivered on April 5, just as he was leaving to spend the week end at his country home in Asheville, N. C., that it was in German and that he paid little attention to it, merely passing it over to a translator, and that he did not receive the translation until April 9. Mr. Bryan says he never consented to the publication of the note, whereas the ambassador maintains that he did.

Some days ago, Mr. Bryan said he had not read the German note, but that his subordinates had and were preparing a reply. The president gravely objects to the character of the note and he considers it most unfortunate that this controversy regarding its receipt and publication should have arisen.

Prosperity by Proclamation.

The administration realizes keenly that unless there is a return of prosperity within the next twelve months there will not be the slightest chance for a democratic victory in 1916. This is frankly admitted by democratic leaders in private conversation and the president himself is fully alive to the situation. Recent elections have emphasized this fact and the spokesmen for the administration have begun a campaign to convince the country that prosperity is already here. The secretary of commerce has issued several statements showing the increased orders in certain industries, without, however, supplying details showing how many of these orders were directly due to the war in Europe. The bank examiners issued another statement tending to prove that the whole country is prosperous. Cabinet officers are alternating in daily interviews to prove that depression has disappeared and that prosperity prevails.

This campaign is humorous because there is nothing so obvious as real prosperity, nothing that requires less proof. The fact that the country has to be officially advised of its advent and impressed with its actuality shows the slim foundation for the assurances which are being given to the country and also the desperate desire of the administration to invoke this absolutely necessary conservator of the democratic rule. It is a well understood rule among business men that economic laws are inexorable and cannot be changed by artificial methods. Prosperity cannot be created by proclamation nor can its presence be denied when it actually exists. The administration cannot hope to convince a business man that he is prosperous when his trial balance shows a loss. Prosperity for political purposes cannot be created, it must develop naturally. The democrats are concerned with its slow development and afraid that it may arrive too late. Hence the vigorous puffing of the slender flame of improving conditions.

Daniels Worried

There is intense anxiety in the office of the secretary of the navy these days. It is gravely feared that the raising of the submarine, the F-4, which sank in the harbor of Honolulu with all on board, will reveal conditions which will put the blame for that disaster squarely up to Secretary Daniels. Commander Stirling frankly told the naval committee of the house of the unsafe condition of a number of the submarines under his command, and he was on December 9 last, severely rebuked for his truthful testimony by Mr. Daniels. Representative Gardner of Massachusetts has publicly charged Secretary Daniels with responsibility for the disaster and there are many others who will not be slow to indict the secretary if their suspicions that his policy was responsible are verified. Another officer who told the truth with entire frankness when he appeared before the naval committee was Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, and he has just been made to walk the plank, metaphorically speaking, by the indignant secretary.

Admiral Fiske has been one of the chief aids of the secretary and has been regarded, by all competent to judge, as an exceedingly able administrator of that office, but he incurred the displeasure of Mr. Daniels because, when examined and cross-examined by members of the naval committee, he told them precisely what the condition of the navy was and how unprepared for war. So he has now suffered the penalty.

W. T. Azbell, ex-postmaster of Edwardsport, Ind., writes: "I suffered from severe trouble with my kidneys and back. First bottle of Foley Pills gave me relief. Thousands testify that backache, rheumatism, sore muscles, aching joints and bladder weakness vanished when Foley Kidney Pills were taken. H. P. Dunn.—Adv't.

WANTS FLEET TO GO TO PACIFIC

Daniels Anxious to Have Ships Visit San Francisco.

GARRISON OPPOSES IDEA.

Secretary of War Thinks Units Should Stay on Atlantic Side and Be Ready For Any Emergency—Friendly Sort of a Game Between Two Cabinet Officers Interests All Washington.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, April 22.—[Special.]—It seems as if there was a sort of a game being played between two cabinet officers. Secretary Daniels is determined to send the fleet through the canal this summer and so on around to San Francisco. Secretary Garrison seems—and the word "seems" is used because he has never said a word—determined that the fleet shall remain on the Atlantic side and ready in case some emergency of the European war should make it necessary for the defense of the country.

Daniels can order the fleet to go through the canal, but if Garrison has a slide or two up his sleeve to let loose just about the time the date is set the fleet cannot go through. It will be interesting to watch the end of the game—if a game is being played. And a great many people seem to think that it is one of the "games" of a somewhat delicate kind that is going on in Washington.

Daniels Seeks No Danger.

For twenty years Mr. Daniels has been an ardent admirer of Mr. Bryan and he shares his views on most public questions. So far as he has been able he has carried out Mr. Bryan's principles in his department. He shares Bryan's peace views and does not for a moment think it possible that this country is going to be involved in war. He does not share the belief of many men both in the war and navy departments that the fleet should not be sent into the Pacific ocean at this time, but held on the Atlantic side in case of an emergency. Mr. Daniels no more than Mr. Bryan believes that there is any possibility of war or that the fleet will be necessary on account of any contingency which may arise.

What He Makes of Himself.

John Lind, who was once governor of Minnesota, is of the opinion that a governor of a state is as much of a power and influence as he makes of himself. "A governor is like a member of congress," said Mr. Lind. "If he is a hard worker, careful to attend to everything and specializes on some important matter he will attract attention and make his office of some account. If he is just a good fellow, loafing along and letting everything go save those things he must look after, he will not be much of a success."

Wilson and War.

One of the few men who once in awhile get close to President Wilson was discussing the situation in Europe the other day.

Recollecting what another man who was supposed to be close to Wilson had assured a large reading public in the United States, I remarked that as long as Wilson was president there would be no war by the United States. "Oh, I would not go so far as that," replied the supposed confidant of the president. "Mr. Wilson wants to avoid war and will do all he can to prevent it. That is a better way to put it."

Made It a Holiday.

President Wilson closed the departments at Washington on the fiftieth anniversary of the death of Abraham Lincoln. It was a proper mark of respect, but the government clerks made the most of it. To them it meant a holiday, and they enjoyed it as such. And one could hardly expect them to sit around all day and mourn with bright April sunshine inviting them to the fields and woodlands.

May Extend the Prejudice.

Life as Season Progresses

Little Falls Transcript: The committee appointed to solicit funds for the 1915 baseball team met Thursday afternoon in Elks hall and decided to begin the work of soliciting funds today. It is necessary to raise about $1,300. Several applications have been received for positions on the team from semi-pro players, and it looks as if there would be no difficulty in securing plenty of fast material for the team if the necessary money can be secured.

Aitkin Age: 'About fifty fans were present at the baseball meeting held at the Moueum theatre last Sunday afternoon. Frank Sears was elected manager and George Matsch treasurer. W. M. O'Hara, Fred Heywood and A. H. Comstock were appointed a committee to solicit funds and to consider the proposition of building a grand stand on the ball grounds.

Just when the season will open here is not yet known, but the manager requests all players to meet with him as soon as possible so as to arrange for practice.

That the local fans will have a chance to see some of the fast teams of this district in action on the local grounds is assured, Brainerd is now working on the organization of a league consisting of Brainerd, Ait-kin and several of the larger towns in this locality who support good ball teams.

Verndale Sun: The management of the Verndale ball team has signed Clarence Kemper, a fast semi-pro pitcher of St. Paul, to take the place of Bungo Towers, who jumped to the Henning team a couple of weeks ago.
Kemper was here last Sunday and came to terms with the locals. He worked out with members of the team during the afternoon and although not extending himself satisfied the management with the showing made. Kemper has had no work-outs this year, but asked for a couple of weeks in order to get in shape.
The new pitcher comes well recommended as a first class slab artist and when once in condition will be able to hold up his end of the game with the fast team Verndale will have in the field this year.

Capt. Butler At Akeley

The Akeley Herald has the following to say of Capt. Butler, of Pequot, on the occasion of a recent visit there:

Capt. T. G. Butler, postmaster of Pequot, was the guest of his daughter, Mrs. E. M. Irish, Sunday. At the ripe age of nearly 80, Capt. Butler recalled the days of 50 years ago, when General Robert E. Lee surrendered to General U. S. Grant at Ap-pomatox. Capt. Butler, then a member of the Eighth Wisconsin volunteers, was an aide on General Grant's staff during that eventful period.
Having been in daily touch with General Grant he related many interesting stories. Capt. Butler was promoted to captain of his company while in action, the command having been turned over to him by his dying captain, who had been mortally wounded. He gave Capt. Butler instructions and expired in the latter's arms.

(Copyright, 1915, by Otis F. Wood.)

"Has he been with you long, this man Craig, professor?" he asked.

The professor's smile was illuminating, his manner simple but convincing.

"Craig," he asserted, "is the best servant, the most honest mortal who ever breathed. He would go any distance out of his way to avoid harming a fly. I cannot even trust him to procure for me the simplest specimens of insect life. Apart from this, he is a man of some property, which he has no idea what to do with. He is, I think I may say, too devoted to me to dream of ever leaving my service."

"You think it would be out of the question, then," Quest asked, "to associate him with the crime?"

The professor's confidence was sublime.

"I could more readily associate you, myself or young Mr. Rheinholdt here with the affair," he declared.

His words carried weight. The little breath of suspicion against the professor's servant faded away. In a moment or two the butler returned.

"It appears, madam," he announced, "that Mr. Craig left when there was only one person in the kitchen. He said good-night and closed the door behind him. It is impossible to say, therefore, by which exit he left the house, but personally I am convinced that, knowing of the reception here tonight, he would not think of using the conservatory."

"Most unlikely, I should say," the professor murmured. "Craig is a very shy man. He is at all times at your disposal. Mr. Quest, if you should desire to question him."

Quest nodded assent. "My assistant and I," he announced, "would be glad to make a further examination of the conservatory, if you will kindly leave us alone."

They obeyed without demur. Quest took a seat and smoked calmly, with his eyes fixed upon the roof. Lenora went back to her examination of the overturned plants, the mold and the whole ground within the immediate environs of the assault. She abandoned the search at last, however, and came back to Quest's side. He threw away his cigar and rose.

"Nothing there?" he asked laconically.

"Not a thing," Lenora admitted.

Quest led the way toward the door. "Lenora," he decided, "we're up against something big. There's a new hand at work somewhere."

"No theories yet, Mr. Quest?" she asked, smiling.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Don't stay gray! Nobody can tell when you darken gray, faded hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

"Confess Your Sins."

of an infinite desire flashed in his eyes. Then he dropped his head. These things might be for others. For him there was no hope. He shook his head to the girl, but sank into the nearest seat and on to his knees.

"He repents!" the girl called out. "Some day he will come! Brothers and sisters, we will pray for him."

The rain dashed against the windows. The only other sound from outside was the clanging of the street cars. The girl's voice, frenzied, exhorting, almost hysterical, pealed out to the roof. At every pause the little gathering of men and women groaned in sympathy. The man's frame was shaken with sobs.

Parliamentary Secretary for the War Office Informs House of Commons That Enlistments During the Past Few Months Are Very Gratifying.

London, April 23.—"The recruiting results of the past few months have been most satisfactory and gratifying," was the statement delivered in the house of commons from War Secretary Kitchenier by Harold J. Tennant, parliamentary secretary of the war office.

"Month by month the stream of new men has been maintained with amazing regularity," Mr. Tennant said, "and when the time comes to call for still more men I am confident the nation will respond with the same readiness, decision and promptness as it has responded in the past."

He referred in glowing terms to the supply services of the army and the health of the troops at the front mentioning incidentally that there was not a case of dysentery among the men.

Large additions had been made to the aerial service since the beginning of the war, Mr. Tennant continued.

He believed the danger threatening from spotted fever has been overcome and he laid particular stress on the importance Lord Kitchenier attached to a limitless supply of artillery ammunition.

Erie, Pa., April 23.—Four more arrests were made in connection with the explosion of a dynamite bomb under the house of Samuel Leonoff, resulting in the death of Leonoff and the injury of thirteen other persons. CRITICISES UNITED STATES

Canadian Solicitor General Speaks at Ottawa.

Ottawa, April 23.—Arthur Meighen, solicitor general for Canada, in an address to the Laurentian club, criticized the policy of President Wilson in the war. He declared that the United States appears to care more for party politics and dollars and cents than for the principles of justice and freedom and the cause of humanity.

Referring to President Wilson's New York speech on America's neutrality he said all the world knows Great Britain is fighting to save humanity—fighting to save the United States as well as the rest of the world from a tyranny which would have overwhelmed all.

Instead of giving moral assistance he declared that the United States is pagging continually Great Britain and shows a distinct inclination to hamper her in her efforts for civilization.

Muffins

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

When muffins are on the breakfast table, nobody cares for meat or eggs and they would be served more often if this meal were not prepared so hurriedly that there is no time to make them. If K. C. the double-raise baking powder is used, the batter may be stirred up the night before, put in the pan ready for baking and nothing to do in the morning but bake them.

One-Egg Muffins

2 cups flour; 2 slightly rounded teaspoonsful K. C. Baking Powder; 1 teaspoonful salt; 1 cup sugar; 1 cup melted butter or lard; 1 egg; 1 cup water or milk.

Sift dry ingredients together three times. Add to this the unbeaten egg, melted shortening and water or milk. Then beat all together until perfectly smooth. Oil muffin or gem pans and have oven slow until the muffins come to the top of the pan, then increase the heat to bake and brown the muffins. This recipe makes 12 large muffins. Raisins or currants may be added if desired.

Graham Muffins

1 cup graham flour; 1 cup pastry flour; 2 level teaspoonsful K. C. Baking Powder; 1 to 2 level tablespoonsful sugar; 1/2 teaspoonful salt; 1 egg; 1 1/2 cups milk or water; 2 to 3 tablespoonsful melted butter; mix and bake as One-Egg Muffins.

Graham batter should always be quite soft to insure light and moist muffins.

To get 88 other recipes as good as these, send us the certificate packed in every 25-cent can of K. C. Baking Powder, and we will send you "The Cook's Book" by Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill. Handsomely illustrated. Jacques Mig. Co., Chicago.

The BLACK BOX

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Author of "Mr. Grex of Monte Carlo," "The Vanished Messenger," "The Lighted Way," etc.

(Copyright, 1915, by Otis F. Wood.)

"Has he been with you long, this man Craig, professor?" he asked.

The professor's smile was illuminating, his manner simple but convincing.

"Craig," he asserted, "is the best servant, the most honest mortal who ever breathed. He would go any distance out of his way to avoid harming a fly. I cannot even trust him to procure for me the simplest specimens of insect life. Apart from this, he is a man of some property, which he has no idea what to do with. He is, I think I may say, too devoted to me to dream of ever leaving my service."

"You think it would be out of the question, then," Quest asked, "to associate him with the crime?"

The professor's confidence was sublime.

"I could more readily associate you, myself or young Mr. Rheinholdt here with the affair," he declared.

His words carried weight. The little breath of suspicion against the professor's servant faded away. In a moment or two the butler returned.

"It appears, madam," he announced, "that Mr. Craig left when there was only one person in the kitchen. He said good-night and closed the door behind him. It is impossible to say, therefore, by which exit he left the house, but personally I am convinced that, knowing of the reception here tonight, he would not think of using the conservatory."

"Most unlikely, I should say," the professor murmured. "Craig is a very shy man. He is at all times at my disposal. Mr. Quest, if you should desire to question him."

Quest nodded absently. "My assistant and I," he announced, "would be glad to make a further examination of the conservatory, if you will kindly leave us alone."

They obeyed without demur. Quest took a seat and smoked calmly, with his eyes fixed upon the roof. Lenora went back to her examination of the overturned plants, the mold and the whole ground within the immediate environs of the assault. She abandoned the search at last, however, and came back to Quest's side. He threw away his cigar and rose.

"Nothing there?" he asked laconically.

"Not a thing," Lenora admitted.

Quest led the way toward the door.

"Lenora," he decided, "we're up against something big. There's a new hand at work somewhere."

"No theories yet, Mr. Quest?" she asked, smiling.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Don't stay gray! Nobody can tell when you darken gray, faded hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

"Not the ghost of one," he admitted gloomily.

Along the rain-swept causeway of Mayton avenue, keeping close to the shelter of the house, his mackintosh turned up to his ears, his hands buried in his pockets, a man walked swiftly along. At every block he hesitated and looked around him. His manner was cautious, almost furtive. Once the glare of an electric light fell upon his face, a face pallid with fear, almost hopeless with despair. He walked quickly, yet he seemed to have no idea as to direction. Suddenly he paused. He was passing a great building, brilliantly lit. For a moment he thought that it was some place of entertainment. The thought of entering seemed to occur to him. Then he felt a firm touch upon his arm, a man in uniform spoke to him.

"Step inside, brother," he invited earnestly, almost eagerly, notwithstanding his monotonous nasal twang. "Step inside and find peace. Step inside and the Lord will help you. Throw your burden away on the threshold."

The man's first impulse at being addressed had seemed to be one of terror. Then he recognized the uniform and hesitated. The man took him by the arm and led him in. There were the best part of a hundred people taking their places after the singing of the hymn. A girl was standing up before them on a platform. She was commencing to speak, but suddenly broke off. She held out her arms to where the professor's confidential servant stood hesitating.

"Come and tell us your sins," she called out. "Come and have them forgiven. Come and start a new life in a new world. There is no one here who thinks of the past. Come and seek forgiveness."

For a moment the wait from the rain-swept world hesitated. The light of an infinite desire flashed in his eyes. Then he dropped his head. These things might be for others. For him there was no hope. He shook his head to the girl, but sank into the nearest seat and on to his knees.

"Confess Your Sins."

The rain dashed against the windows. The only other sound from outside was the clanging of the street cars. The girl's voice, frenzied, exhorting, almost hysterical, pealed out to the roof. At every pause the little gathering of men and women groaned in sympathy. The man's frame was shaken with sobs.
